

32nd Sunday in Ordinary Time

St Thomas More Parish, Glenfield, 6 November 2022

The WORD This Week

It is fortuitous that this passage of the Gospel is normally read near to the beginning of November, when we have celebrated the feasts of All Saints and All Souls, since it is a strong proclamation of the reality of life after death and the resurrection of the body. This Sunday is not without its difficulties, however, since this message is framed in two very sensitive passages: we have a story of cruelty and martyrdom in the first reading, and a controversial (and possibly upsetting) question about marriage in the Gospel.

Remember that the example that the Sadducees bring is ridiculous, legalistic and completely misses the point: Jesus reply does not mean that we are not with our loved ones after death quite the contrary, he proclaims that we will all become one with God and each other as children of God.

Prayer this Sunday

Lord Jesus,
 may I always be ready to greet You
 when You come.
 I thank You for Your perfect promise of raising all from the dead
 and bringing forth new life.
 Use me to gather many into this future
 and glorious Kingdom, dear Lord.
 Jesus, I trust in You.

John Paul Thomas

GOSPEL SPIRITUALITY

The Resurrection of the Body

"That the dead will rise even Moses made known in the passage about the bush, when he called 'Lord,' the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob; and he is not God of the dead, but of the living, for to him all are alive." Luke 20:37-38

Death entered into this world by sin (Romans 5:12). So all will die, with the exception that those who are alive at the return of Christ at the end, will never die (First Thessalonians 4:13-17). In verse 17: "Then [at His return, and after the resurrection of the dead] we the living, will be taken together with them [the risen dead] in the clouds to meet the Lord" (Cf. 1 Cor 15:51). There will be a resurrection of all, as St. Paul explains in First Corinthians chapter 15. Those who have been faithful to Christ will rise glorious, their bodies transformed on the model of the risen body of Christ, who could travel instantly at will, could ignore closed doors and come through anyway, but yet had real flesh. St. Paul says the risen body is "spiritual" (15:44). It is still flesh, but such that the flesh is completely dominated by the soul, so that it can no longer suffer or die. St. Paul insists that because Christ our Head rose, those who are members of Him must also rise. So, to deny the general resurrection would imply a denial of Christ's resurrection (1 Cor 15:13). After the resurrection, each of person will have the same body (except for imperfections) that he had in this life. If this involves having the same matter, this is surely within God's power. No matter what happens to the body after death, He can recall and rebuild the material of the body. In fact, we now know that because of metabolism--in which every cell is constantly being torn down and rebuilt--in a normal life span a person has the material for many bodies. We will, of course be the same persons after the resurrection as we were before death.

PROLIFE FACTS

The official abortion data for 2021 has recently been published, revealing that 13,257 abortions were carried out in New Zealand last year (a slight increase from the 13,246 abortions carried out in 2020). The number of abortions within Māori and Pacific communities has increased since 2021 and 2020. Of note, 10% more surgical abortions were carried out on Māori than non-Māori, and non-Pacific peoples last year. One small positive is that the abortion ratio (the number of abortion procedures per 1,000 known pregnancies) has dropped slightly from 186 in 2020 to 183 last year. Last weekend, on October 29th, Remembrance Day events were held outside abortion facilities around the country. Crosses were laid to commemorate the lives of children lost because of abortion over the last year, and a minute's silence was observed.
